RESEARCH &
DEVELOPMENT MANAGER
SAFE HOUSE PROJECT

Becca is the Research & Development Manager for Safe House Project and started in March of 2023. She is a graduate of Montana State University with a Bachelor's in Business Administration, options in Management & Marketing, and a minor in Small Business Management. Her work in human-services nonprofit organizations is built on an understanding that impact is created by connecting compassion with research-supported action.

Becca first joined the Safe House Project team as the Training & Certification Specialist, focusing on effective practices for raising awareness about trafficking, equipping key community members to identify and support survivors, and ensuring that the services survivors are provided are trauma-informed.

In her current role as the Research & Development Manager, Becca combines data, industry research, and survivor perspectives to inform anti-trafficking education, design industry-specific resources, and support the sustainable growth of anti-trafficking programs. Her writing is focused on building a national response to human trafficking founded on effective education, data-supported best practices, and the empowerment of survivor voices in the anti-trafficking movement.

Becca is honored to be a part of Safe House Project as they work to change the world by supporting survivors and protecting future generations from sexual exploitation. She can be reached at rebecca@safehouseproject.org.
