PERSONAL QUOTE

"That which we tolerate is that which we give permission to exist. America is the land of the free because we have refused to let the oppression of one people go unchecked. Americans charge the darkness to drive out injustice. We must see child trafficking in America for the evil it is and work to bring it to an end in the same spirit that we have addressed racism, terrorism, slavery and other threats to who we are as a free nation. "

- Kristi Wells, CEO of Safe House Project

INSPIRATION

I am inspired by those being trafficked who look evil in the eye every day and make the choice to survive. If they are willing to fight to stay alive, I am willing to do everything in my power to help them find freedom. You see, I believe that every person has the right to know the truth that they have dignity, value and worth as a human being and not as a commodity. When we operate from a place of believing that people have intrinsic value, then fighting for them to have freedom, feels like the only natural step.
